"Time is a kind of river of passing events, and strong is its current; no sooner is a thing brought to sight than it is swept by and another takes its place, and this too will be swept away."

We have traveled on this river of life to what end we could not foresee. Along our journey our lives have gathered in the turn of seasons as the routine of education wore away the edges of hours, and the pebbles of thought cast by our teachers paved the course we followed. Once we had embarked, the melody of the rushing waters echoed in our ears - No return, No return, No return.

Dedication

God's great men come not from a place of complete peace and perfection, but from the world of beauty and ugliness, quiet and turmoil, sorrow and gladness. In their hearts God plants the seeds of faith and love which grow into pillars of greatness. Their spirits are aflame with devotion; their hearts are overflowing with compassion.

These associates of the Trinity are saints: laymen, children, scholars and Popes. One such man was John XXIII, man among men, leader of the Christian world, humble servant of God. His character was one formed by gentleness and fatherly love. Ruling the Church from a pastoral throne of patience and forgiveness, he attracted the far-flung peoples of the world with a serene smile and a kind word. Manifesting his innate courage, he launched an Ecumenical Council, which has been like a first spring breeze, quickening with life the Church's renewal and its task of reuniting the numerous faiths of men, so long separated. Truly Pope John was a man who loved his faith, his fellow man, but above all his God.

So it is with a mixture of joy for his final triumph and of sorrow for our loss, that we, children of a common father, dedicate this 1964 Copa to the eternal spirit of our Pope of happy memory, John XXIII.

Faculty

"No man can reveal to you aught but that which already lies half asleep in the dawning of your knowledge. If the teacher is indeed wise he does not bid you enter the house of his wisdom, but rather leads you to the threshold of your own mind."

It has been said that a student's education is, in reality, only as fruitful as that which she endeavors to put into it. However, this is only partially true. For what is learning without a leader, a teacher, a friend? How can the mind develop without guidance? How can a character take shape without a mold? How can a mortal man cross a vast abyss of swirling water without a bridge?

Our inexhaustible teachers are all these things to us. They give of themselves unselfishly, courageously, and generously whenever we are in need.

Our Lord said, "Ask and you shall receive." It is with this dignity of spirit that our teachers guide us to maturity. For their invaluable help, we students of Ramona extend to our teachers undying thanks, genuine devotion, and continuing love.

His Eminence, James Francis Cardinal McIntyre, His Holiness, Pope Paul VI, and His Excellency, Bishop Timothy J. Manning.

Sister Superior and Mr. Ben Salvaty talk over activities in the library of the new convent which the Fathers' Club so generously helped to build.

Parents and relatives are guided on an "open house" tour by Kathy McCarter, one of the Ramona hostesses.

Teamwork

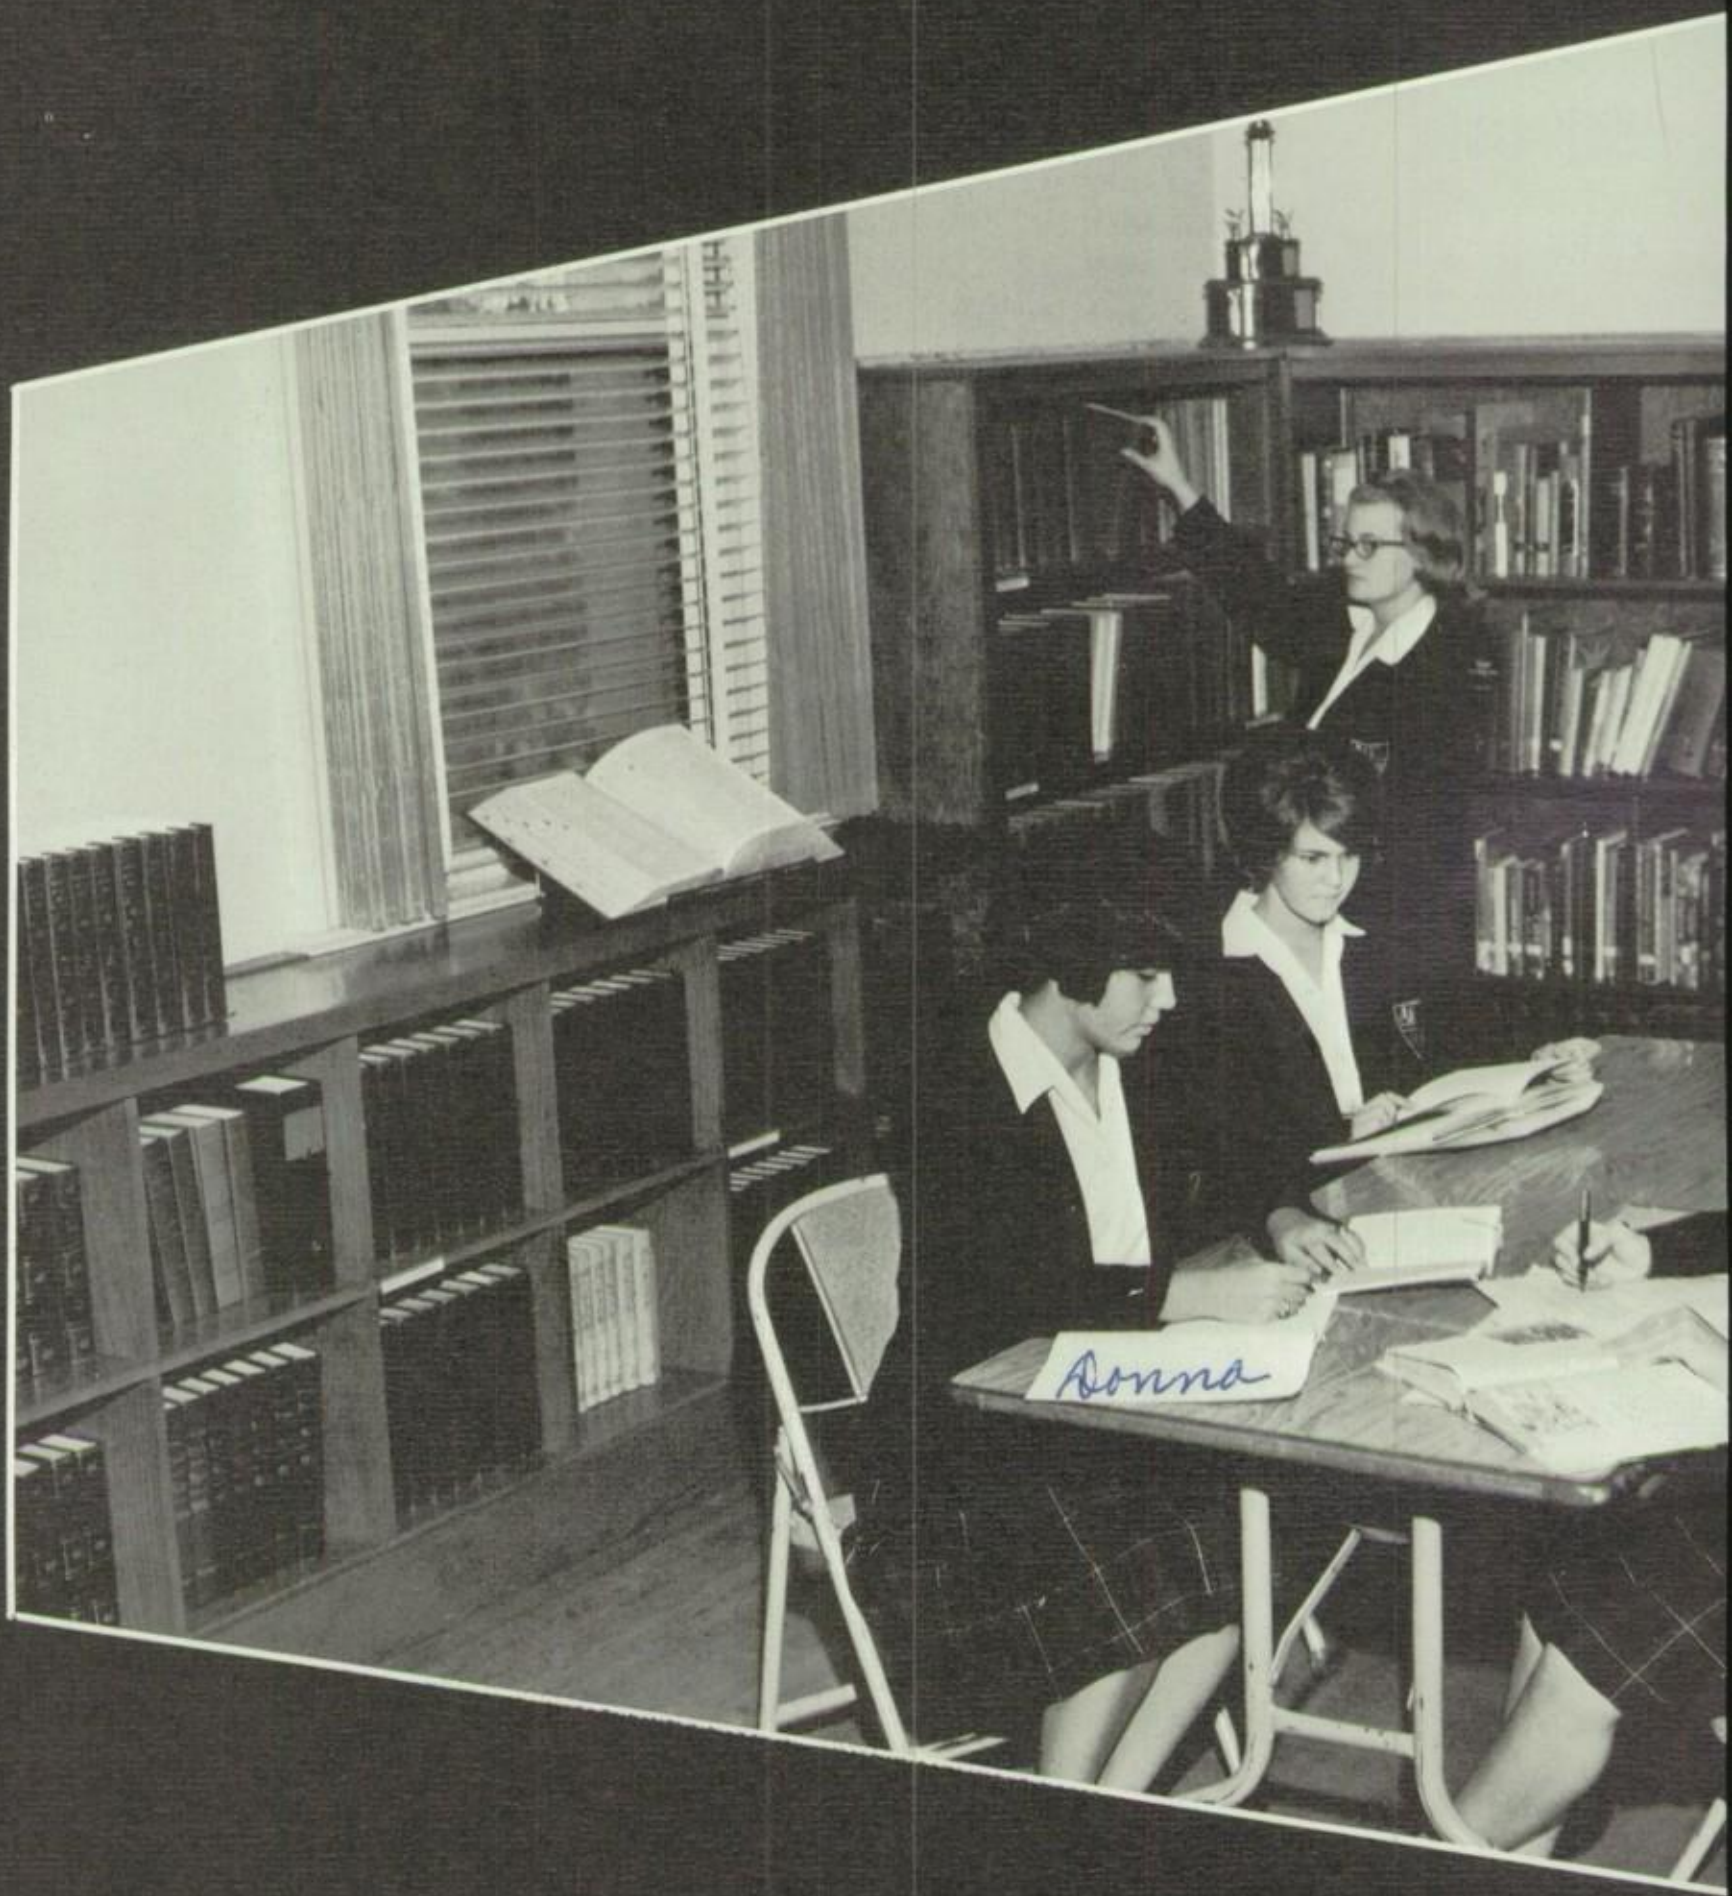

The parents of freshmen and new students are addressed by Sister Gerarda Marie, Superior, and members of Ramona's faculty.

Orientation night provides parents and teachers with the opportunity for friendly conversations about students and studies. Times like these enable them to begin the relationships which are culminated in the senior year.

The "pause that refreshes" is enjoyed by parents and served by Ramona hostess Vicki Rue.

Academics

"We shall not cease from exploration, and the end of all our exploring will be to arrive where we started, and know the place for the first time."

When we began our endless pursuit of learning, we began a search for truth not only for ourselves, but for the sake of mankind as well. Our minds were opened to a world, stretching out toward the horizon of wisdom. Our personal attainment of this world of intellectual growth and human experience is the reward of our high school years. We gain a love of our God and the world He gave us, an understanding of Christian principles by which we live, and an appreciation of the rights and obligations of man to society. As we grow to maturity, to an understanding of life itself, we find truth.

Forming Christian Ideals

Diana

Sharon

Sister Gerarda Marie and seniors listen attentively while Mary Kay Salvaty reads President Kennedy's Thanksgiving Proclamation preparatory to a discussion of it.

Primo
Small discussion groups in Sister Mary Martha's freshman religion study more carefully the duties of their student vocation.

Sister Alphonsa instructs a special religion class, designed to guide foreign students to a better understanding of their faith.

Although we all take part in a school day consisting of classes, activities and individual endeavors, we do so in various ways at various times. At second period, however, the hearts and minds of all Ramona students join together in a never-ending search for God and His truth. Through group discussions we express our personal opinions and ask those questions necessary for a deeper appreciation of Christian heology. It is during our four years of religious education that we better understand the meaning of spiritual growth.

Through the study of English, the student acquires a greater knowledge of her literary and dramatic heritage and develops a deeper appreciation and cultural awareness of the classics. The senior honors program enables fourth-year students to achieve higher proficiency in independent thinking and nurtures intelligent reading and interpretation. Junior English specializes in tracing the development of American literature and its influences in the modern world. Freshman and sophomore classes prepare each student for more advanced study by laying a solid foundation in English grammar and by introducing the fundamentals of literature.

As each year progresses, we become more acquainted with cultures and philosophies foreign or native to us; and because of our study we become richer persons, capable of a deeper understanding of the world.

Carefully selected reading material is furnished by Sister M. Anne Regina to English IV students for whom reading is an important part of their program.

A few light moments bring smiles to the faces of Sister Mary Teresita's diligent sophomore students.

Our Literary Heritage

Students are quick to learn and eager to share their knowledge and appreciation of our American literature in Sister Mary Michaeline's junior English class.

Above, Sister Marian Ambrose directs the attention of lecture biology students to a diagram on the board. Right, the process of photosynthesis is discussed by Mary Weightman in the new B.S.C.S. advanced laboratory biology course.

Sophomores Chris Kalen and Dotty Homan learn the importance of keeping equipment in proper order.

A scientific background and discipline instill in the student the basic principles and attitudes which inspire her to meet the challenge of research and discovery. Through precision technique, patient observation, and careful interpretation of data, the student broadens her mind and stimulates her appreciation of the world she lives in. She develops a deeper insight into life itself, a respect for the ideas of others, and a logical approach towards the challenging events of the world.

The beautiful and well-equipped science building affords students the opportunity to delve into the mysteries of life.

Door to New Worlds

Sister M. Francis James looks on approvingly during the experiment of chemistry students Denise Bielamowicz and Pat Keesey.

The constituents of milk are explained in detail by Diane Lambrecht in the course for freshmen in principles of science.

Cafeteria Capers

To eat or not to eat—that's a question?

When the lunch bell rings, happy students rush from classrooms to make their way to the cafeteria as time is taken out from serious studies for further research in the culinary pursuits. The fine art of expostulation is much in evidence during the daily lunch period at Ramona.

Say there, that looks like my celery stick!

Language is the means of expressing ideas. Through the study of French, Latin or Spanish, the student gains the ability to understand and interpret the spoken and written language, and hence to understand the ideas of others. In addition she acquires a mental discipline and an ever-increasing awareness of the lives and customs of others. Communicating with others in their own language is, perhaps, one of the best means toward unity among people.

Business majors receive explicit instructions on how to run the office machinery properly.

The commercial arts course enables college preparatory students as well as business majors to acquire proficiency in typing, shorthand, record keeping and office practice. Besides the practical application of business techniques, girls learn the importance of good grooming and manners in their future careers.

Sister Mary Candida gives dictation to students in both Stenography I and II. The importance of efficiency through practice is constantly stressed in all business courses.

Approvingly, Sister watches the nimble fingers of a typing student.

Interests

Amateur seamstresses are given the opportunity to develop their creativity and ability through clothing classes. These girls spend many hours making their own suits and dresses which they model in the annual spring fashion show.

During one of the daily P.E. classes, Miss Paterra holds the whistle while everyone wonders—is it fair or foul?

Dove, your little Sis!

All attention is given to Mrs. Washburn as she points out the proper cut of the material.

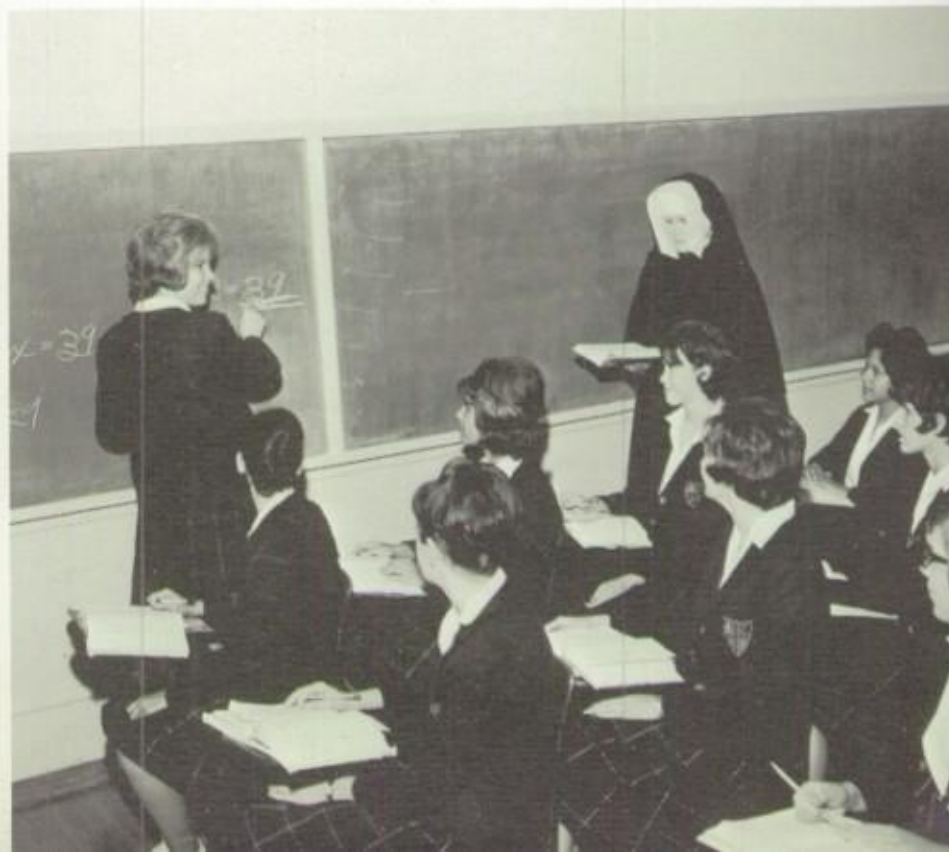

In Pursuit of the Unknowns

Geometry students seem to have all the answers to Mrs. Quinn's questions.

Sister M. Virgilius helps in solving the intriguing problems which the slide rule presents to Algebra II students.

At some time in every girl's studies at Ramona, she travels down the trail of the unknowns and comes to the crossroads of the X's and Y's. The road is difficult at times, with many acute angles and square roots to contend with. Over the slopes of graphs and through the woods of slide rules she goes, forging on until she comes to the end of her trail and fondly bids farewell to the world of numbers, for a short time at least.

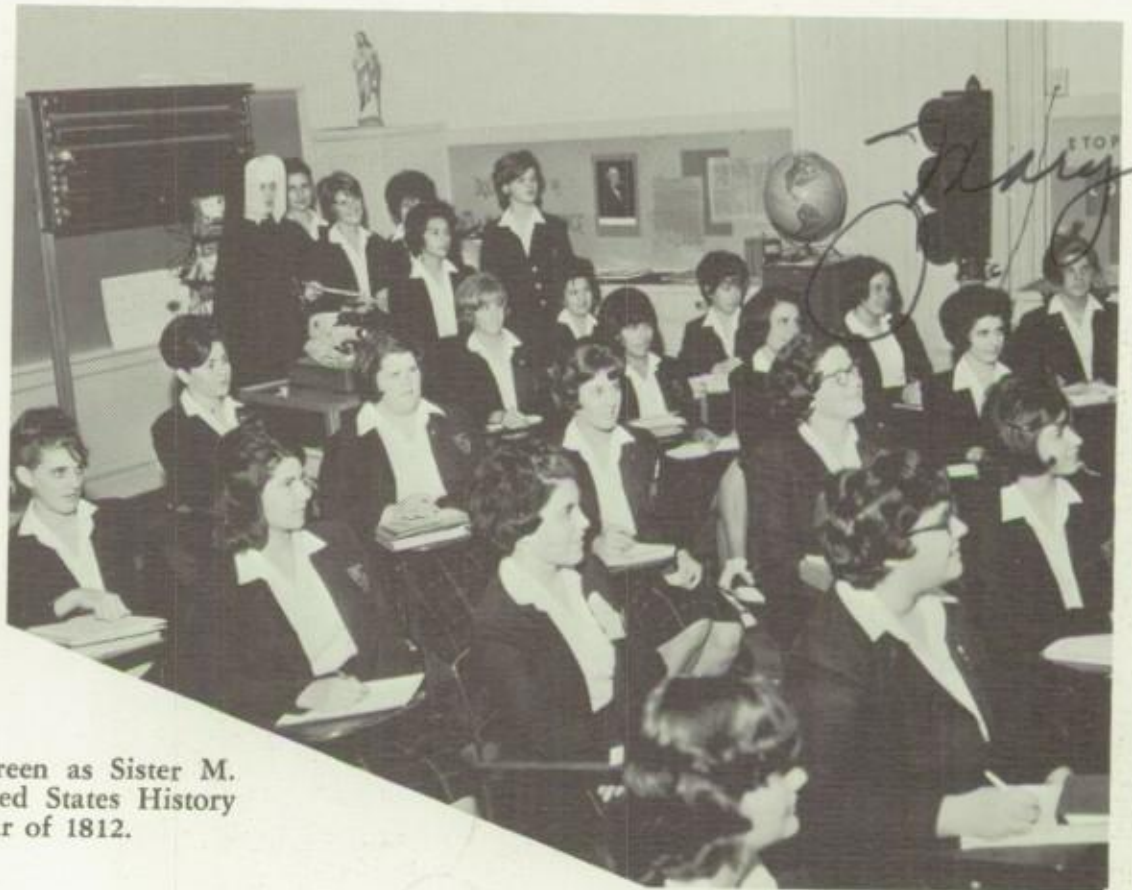

With the help of Sister M. Annunciata, an Algebra I student attempts to solve an equation.

History can be much more for us than a record of past events; for it is the reality of man's whole experience, past, present and future. Assimilating the ideals and accomplishments of yesterday into the building of present-day society, we can create a more fruitful tomorrow. The study of past civilizations is more essential than ever in this age of emerging democracies based upon the will and understanding of the people.

Supervising the correction of tests is another task of World History teacher, Miss Fucci.

Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow

All eyes are fixed on the screen as Sister M. Anne Regina shows her United States History students a filmstrip on the War of 1812.

Members of the class in Contemporary World Problems, a new addition to Ramona's curriculum, survey the historical development and the challenges of our century through student reports and group discussions, guided by Sister Marion Philip.

Beauty-

the Mirror of Eternity

Freshmen fine arts students industriously take notes from Sister Miriam Edward on the development of Renaissance Art.

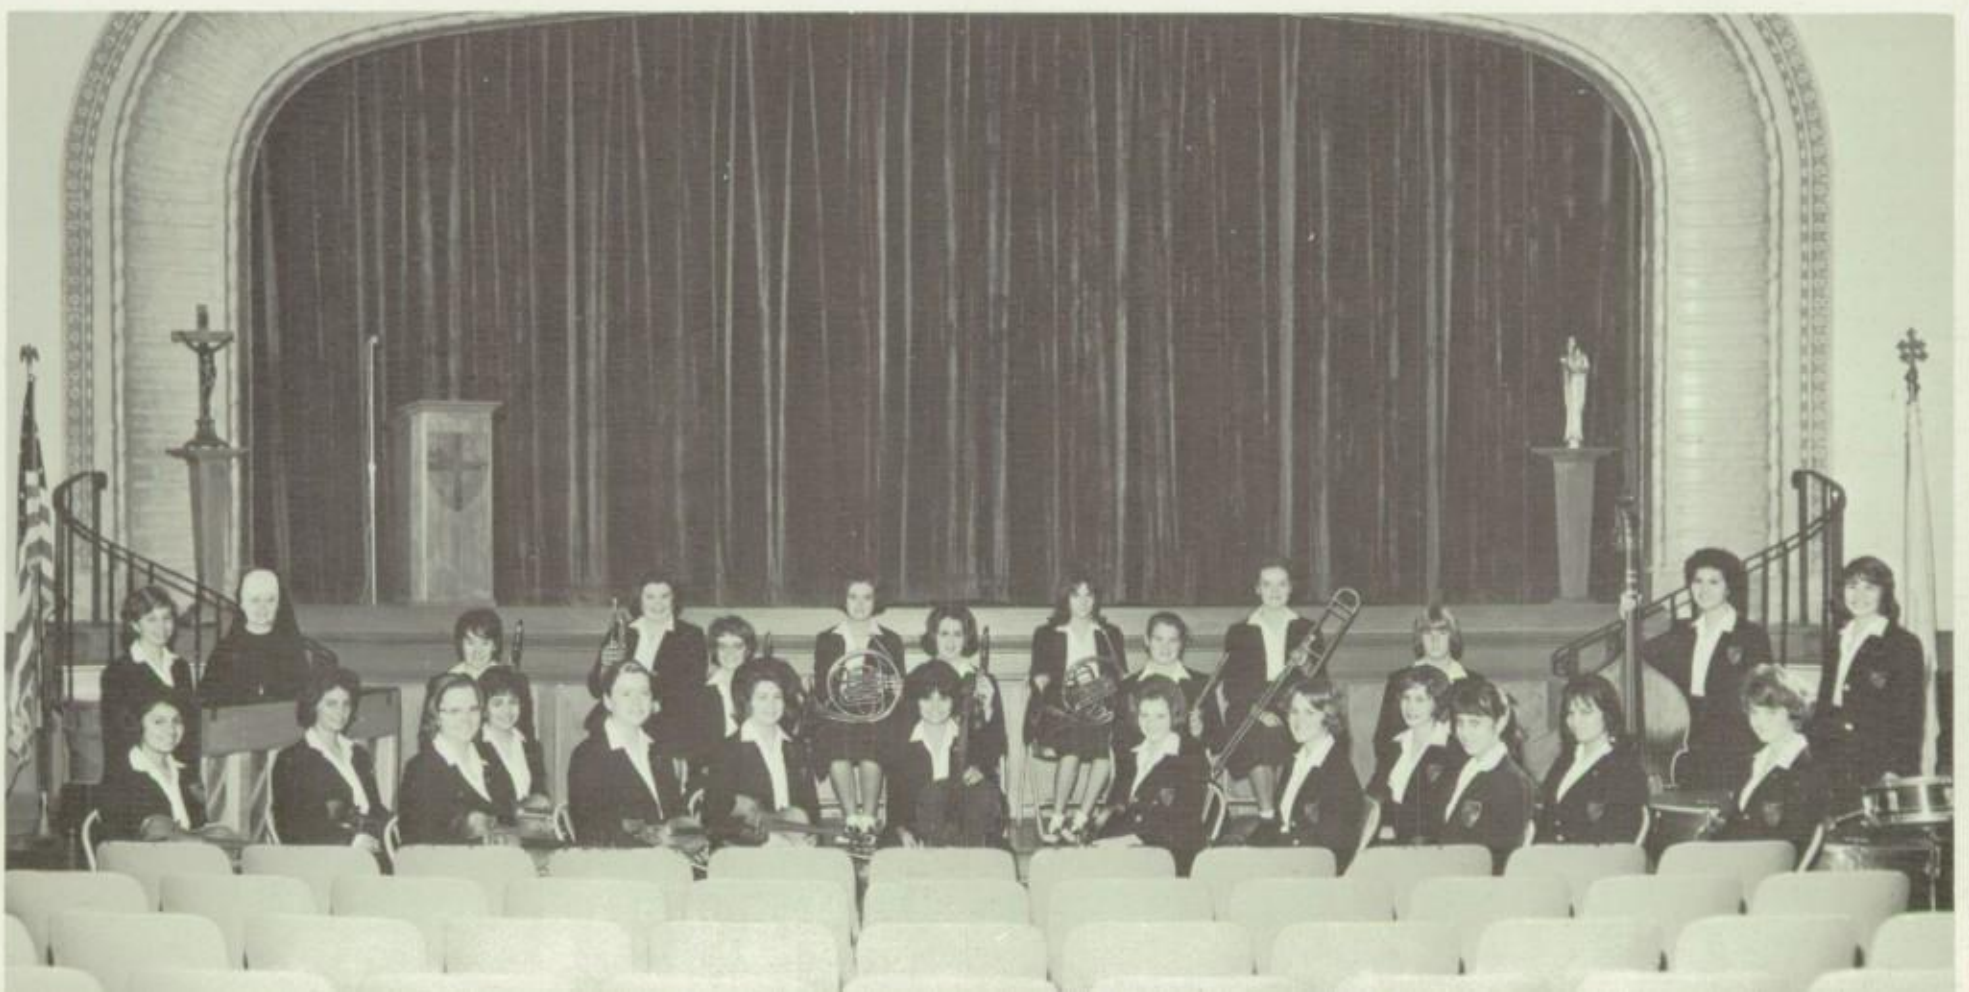

Sister Mary Martha seems delighted with the silk screen Christmas cards of Ramona's budding artists.

Through courses in the fine arts, students gain an understanding of the expressions of music, art and drama from the classical to the modern. The rewards of this understanding are both an appreciation for the arts and the encouragement of individual creativity.

By participating in Ramona's choral and orchestra, each student gains personal enrichment by practice and performance. Through this sharing with the entire student body, the joys of self-expression and co-operation can become the joys of all.

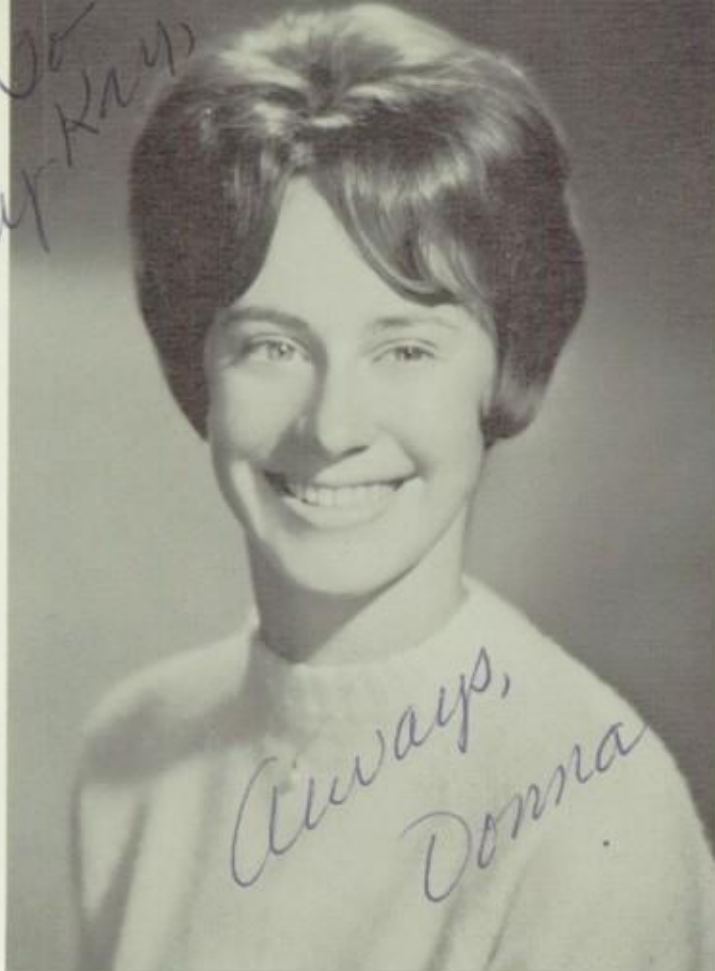

Seniors

"What we call the beginning is often the end. And to make an end is to make a beginning. The end is where we start from."

One part of our lives is ending that another may begin. With ideals instilled and virtues acquired, with courage and strong convictions, we face the future and the realization of our potentialities; we have progressed to the portals of womanhood. With willing hands, and open hearts, we are ready to take our place in society as Christian women.

As we embrace the past in remembrance, we look towards the future; but our sadness at departure is also our joy of expectation. As we embark on the river of life, we find our yesterday as the memory of today, our tomorrow as the dream of today.

CLASS SONG

'Til the moon deserts the sky,
'Til all the seas run dry,
'Til then we'll honor you.

'Til the Class of '64
Walks through those golden doors,
Your vision we'll remember.

Christ the King, our guiding Light,
Directs us on to right
With red and white our colors.

As the lion guides our day,
Forever we will say,
Viva Christo Rey!

Underclassmen

*"Another class the following spring supplies.
They fall successive, and successive rise."*

Just as a tree must shed one dress of leaves that another may be put on, so must a school lose one class that another may reign. As the memory of one class fades into the past, the reality of another glows in the present; and the potential of still another brightens the future.

One day soon the juniors shall wear the crown of leadership; the sophomores shall carry the scepter of assurance; the freshmen shall take up the mantle of enthusiasm. We, who are about to become a memory, pray together that God may bless their endeavors and protect their futures forever.

CLASS SONG

Banners high, raise them high, for the class of sixty-six,
with our Lady to guide us along.
Orange and white, we will fight with the eagle at our side;
ever onward and upward we'll aim.
So beware all foes; we're the class that really goes.
Victory shall always be our goal.
All hail to thee, Our Queen of Victory.
May you guide and protect us fore'er.

Through the years may we be ever bound by loyalty,
with our Lady to guide us along.
Unity shall prevail; in our strength we'll never fail;
ever onward and upward we'll aim.
So it's fight, fight, fight 'til we reach our golden height.
Victory shall always be our goal.
We shall always be, in Ramona's memory

Organizations

"Every right implies a responsibility; every opportunity, an obligation; every possession, a duty."

A school does not exist solely for learning, but also for the formation of the individual character. In order for a Ramona student to become better acquainted with the social and governmental aspects of life, she is offered membership in school organizations.

The Student Body officers and Student Council members demonstrate the responsibilities of leadership through their management of the R.C. system, student functions and student-faculty relations; the G.A.A. promotes active interest in a variety of sports, including volley-ball, bowling, archery and swimming; the Sodality offers each girl the opportunity to further her spiritual development through dialogue Masses and the group and committee meetings. By participating in each of these organizations, every girl is offered the chance to develop her personal potentialities. The opportunities are everywhere, but it is individual effort and co-operation which reaps the rich harvest.

"Service to all, respect for others, mastery of self; these constitute life."

Most meaningful to us in our lives as student body officers is a spirit of loving unity. It means our experiences from the first day through all the activities we have organized, including Funday, the Mother-Daughter Tea, and Eighth Grade Day; and all these have bound us more closely to one another. It has grown and matured through our service into a deeper, finer love of Ramona.

Student Government

The Student Council of Ramona, composed of the heads of each organization and class, is the core of the student body. Under the immediate direction of Sister Mary Annunciata, Dean, the council members help to enforce school regulations, discuss problems of student government, plan campus activities and promote congenial inter-school relations.

Sister Annunciata discusses up-coming activities with student officers.

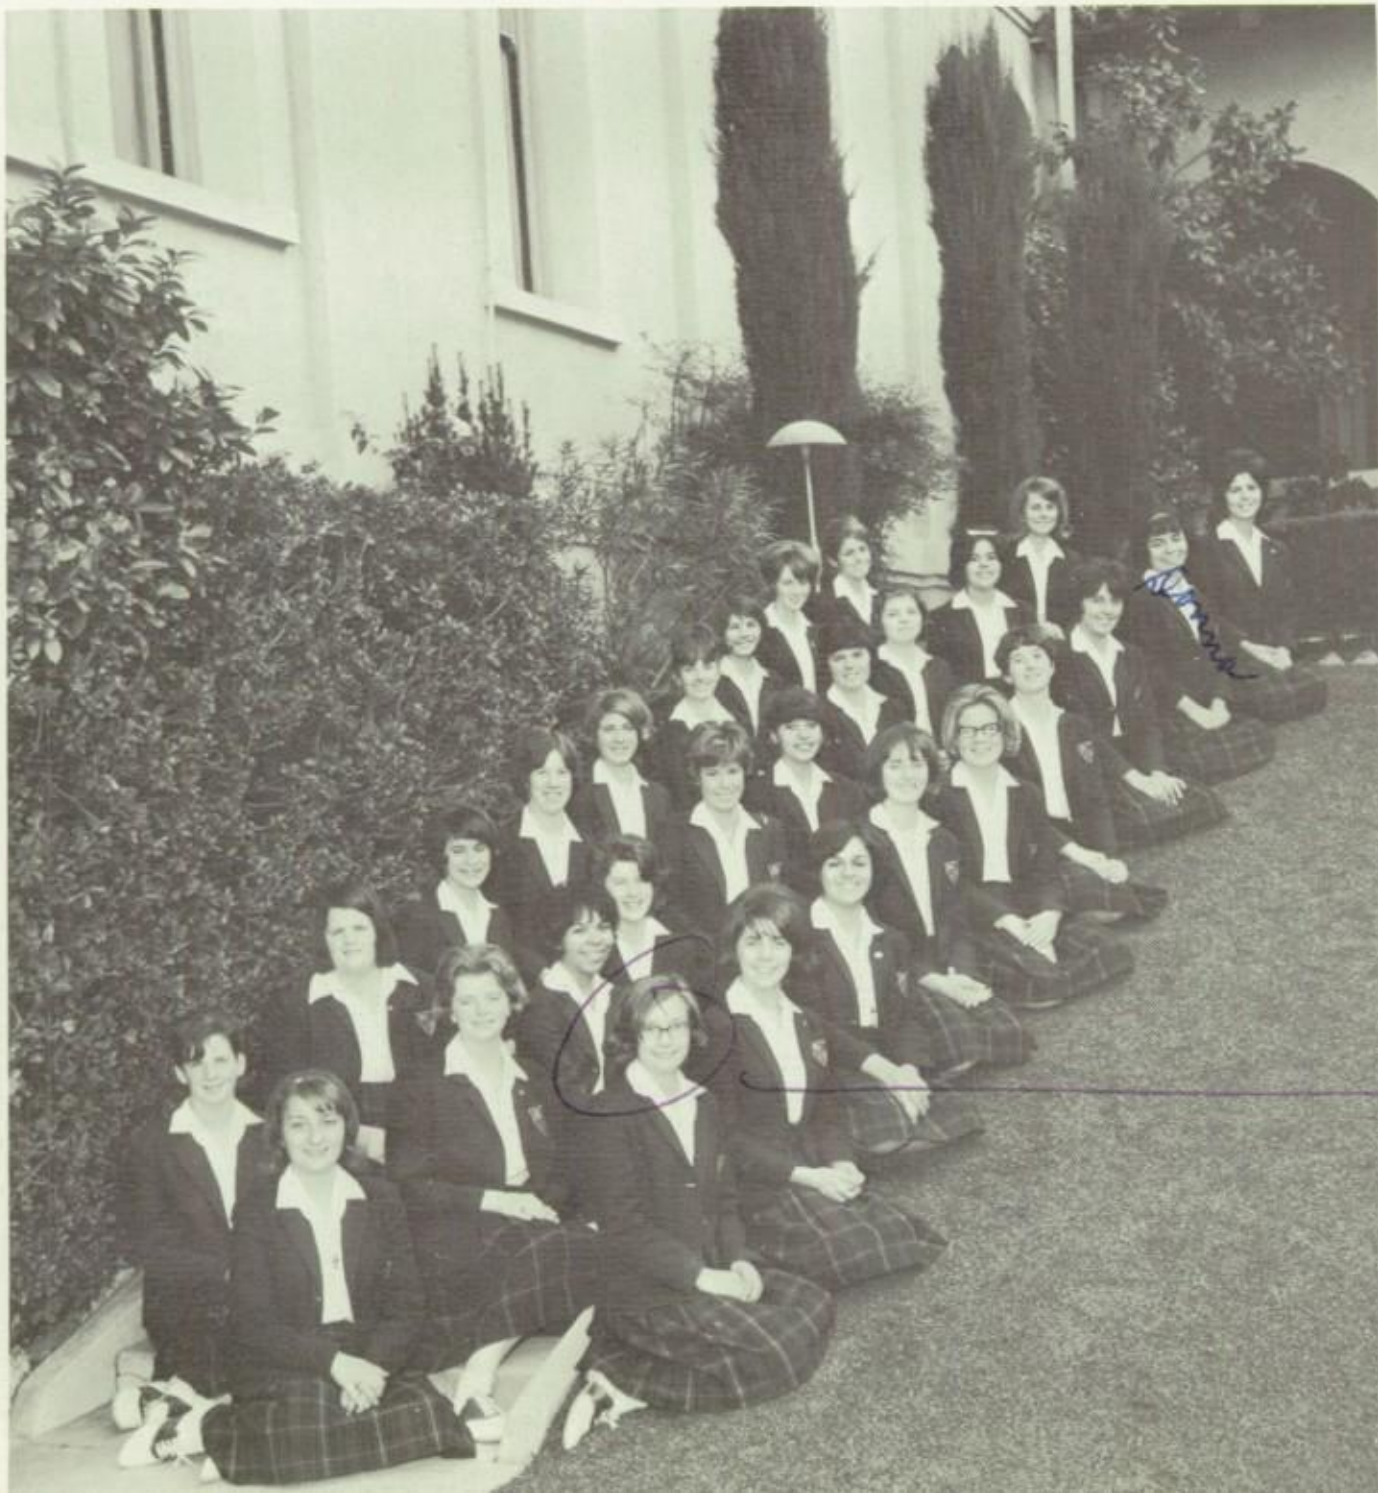

Pep Club

Ramona's Pep Club is an organization designed to promote enthusiastic participation in all school activities. The specialties of our vivacious "pep" representatives are spirit-raising rallies and rollicking skits, such as the "Varsity Drag" staged for the G.A.A. playday.

"To Jesus through Mary."

Whatever task a sodalist may perform, it is welcomed. She may be asked to read a mental prayer, count stamps, lead the rosary, direct a play, use an electric typewriter or hunt up a wheel chair. The officers in Our Lady's Committee act as a link between their fellow sodalists and moderator, Sister Miriam Edward. The success which has crowned their projects has been largely the reward of the spirit of teamwork which also plays its role in the development of the mature sodalist. Motivated by her motto, "To Jesus through Mary," the sodalist knows that in serving others she serves Mary's Son.

"Many are one in victory, sportsmanship and fun."

The true realization of the goals and ideals of the Girls' Athletic Association can best be seen in its individual members. Through a well-rounded program of varsity, class games, intramurals and officiating, the G.A.A. strives to form in each girl a true sense of loyalty, justice and sportsmanship.

To some, the G.A.A. may be the fun and tense seconds of a good game, the skill shown in exciting competition, or the enthusiasm and support given at rallies and games. But to others, the G.A.A. means even more—a source of enjoyment found in working together and in the satisfaction of giving. It holds the joy of unity in striving for the goals of victory, sportsmanship and fun.

Copa Staff

"To live in the hearts we leave behind is not to die."

When time has moved a short space ahead and exciting moments have become quiet memories, very few of us will be able to remember the names of our teachers and classmates, for a memory is intangible, easily lost and hard to regain.

All our efforts this past year have gone for the shaping of a yearbook, a tangible record of our memories of Ramona. Whatever our work has produced, it could never have come to be without the help and guidance of our moderator, Sister M. Anne Regina. We, the members of the COPA staff, wish to extend our gratitude and love to you, Sister, for all you have done and to all those who have helped to make the COPA '64 possible.

Now that all our dreams are reality and all our planning is over, we remember that once, a long time ago, we came, we looked, we loved, and now we must leave.

The members of the Copa Staff sincerely wish to thank Mr. Christy for his efficient work in photography, Mr. Hopkins for his patience and good humor with our unique layouts, and Sister M. Anne Regina for her undaunted courage in the face of our last-minute deadlines.

Once there was a Copa Staff who in the midst of pandemonium discovered the only way to perfect peace—"Shall we jump?"

Ramona's C.S.F. hosts a district meeting in preparation for the annual spring conference to be held at Cal Tech.

With the motto, "Scholarship for Service," the members of the California Scholarship Federation of Ramona strive to attain high academic standing and to share their knowledge with others. This year with the guidance of Sister Mary Andrew, C.S.F. students operated a tutoring service, hosted a district meeting, helped to plan a spring conference held at Cal Tech, and enjoyed an annual field trip.

Under the direction of Sister Felice Marie, R.C.'s drama club has enjoyed increasing prominence this year. Among its many activities are one-act plays and competitive entries in drama festivals. The object of the drama club is to initiate and further interest in fine theater arts. The club has been very successful as a stimulus in these areas, keeping the student body well informed of community theater activities through use of the drama bulletin board.

Through the years one of the most beautiful of Ramona's programs has been the one honoring Our Lady of Guadalupe, presented by Las Latinas. This organization, composed of all our Latin American students, enables every girl to become better acquainted with the cultures of our neighbors south of the border.

Las Latinas members present Las Posadas to the resident students and faculty members. This beautiful ceremony is brought to a close with the traditional breaking of the piñata in the boarders' living room.

One of the most important groups in Ramona is the residents. Here each girl shares the bonds of unity and friendship with her many sisters from various countries and backgrounds. Activities

"Each day is a vessel into which a great deal may be poured if one will actually fill it up."

Developing academic excellence is not the only aim of Ramona's curriculum, for a student without friends and the joys of communal activities would have an existence devoid of the most important memories of high school life. We would not be able to develop our inner talents and personalities without a varied social life. Such activities as dances, plays and skits not only enable each girl to exercise her creative ability, but also to prove her spirit of cooperation and responsibility by working with others in the preparation of these events. Thus, if all our days are filled with living, ours will be a happy existence and our cup of memories would be overflowing.

"Oh no, Denise, not the brown locker hall," is a familiar cry on registration day.

Following her reception, Sister Gerarda Marie, Superior, enjoys some "special" pictures, part of her feastday offering from the student body.

Frosh co-operation and spirit are shown as initiation week ends in an auditorium program of "Alice in Wonderland."

Activities and

"Hail, almighty senior! The time is 8:45, and you're late for a very important date."

Mission areas of the world are colorfully represented by students in a program anticipating the feast of Christ the King.

Members of freshman section III gather around the Advent wreath for prayer.

During religion class Dusty Greene narrates a Bible vigil for the feast of Christmas.

Programs

The true meaning of Christmas is conveyed through a medieval dramatization in dance of the adoration of the shepherds.

" . . . and bring me a big, black blanket and a do-it-yourself atomic bomb kit."

The visit of the three kings is reenacted for Ramona's traditional Epiphany program.

Seventh grade recitalist, Peggy Kyle, is accompanied by Susan Twomey in a Mendelssohn concerto.

Background music is provided at the Mother-Daughter Tea by Susan Twomey, Maria McGinley, and Peggy Kyle, all members of R.C.'s orchestra.

Recitalists

Advanced piano students playing in the spring recital are: Cathy Harrigan, Kathy Kosiorowski, Bernadette Walters, Patricia Keesey, Jeanne Raya, and Maria Nifosi.

Mother- Daughter Tea

Introductions to faculty and student officers begin the most formal of Ramona's social festivities, the Mother-Daughter Tea.

Sister Mary Andrew chats informally with guests as refreshments are being served.

Laura Nerney and Jane Bastanchury, reflecting Ramona's training in the social graces, prepare to serve the guests of honor at the tea, our mothers.

Seniors Bobbi Schirra and Ann Mason enjoy the friendly atmosphere of Ramona's hospitality with their mothers.

Juniors and their escorts enjoy refreshments as they take time out for a little relaxation.

The senior dance, "Fall Fantasy," is romantically depicted by the "horn of plenty" and the "Harvest Moon".

An hour-long hootenany was the highlight of the October dance for upperclassmen.

One of the main attractions at the January prom is the refreshment table, beautifully decorated to coincide with the theme.

Class Dances

The music of Bob Ray and the Saints creates the perfect mood for the Junior Prom, "Velvet is the Night."

Dancing couples find cold water and frosty air provide the perfect atmosphere for the sophomore January sport dance, "Chateau de Ski."

Anna is charmed by the royal children of the amazing King of Siam.

"Oh Buddha, give us the aid of your strength and your wisdom—Why is your head higher than mine?"

"I think your Moses shall have been a fool."

"Getting to like you, getting to hope you like me."

Lady Thiang pleads with Anna to come to the aid of the King who needs her.

Athletics

"The player is more than the game itself; the spirit more than the victory."

We cannot develop our full capacity without a varied and lively school program with each day playing an important part in forming a whole and rich personality. Physical education plays a vital role both in this development and in providing a healthy and hardy form of recreation. Through its athletic program, including volleyball, swimming, archery, and basketball, we learn how to work together as a team. We are able to grasp and exercise the important qualities of good sportsmanship which helps us to become better and happier persons.

The pep club re-creates the spirit of the 'twenties for the "Varsity Drag."

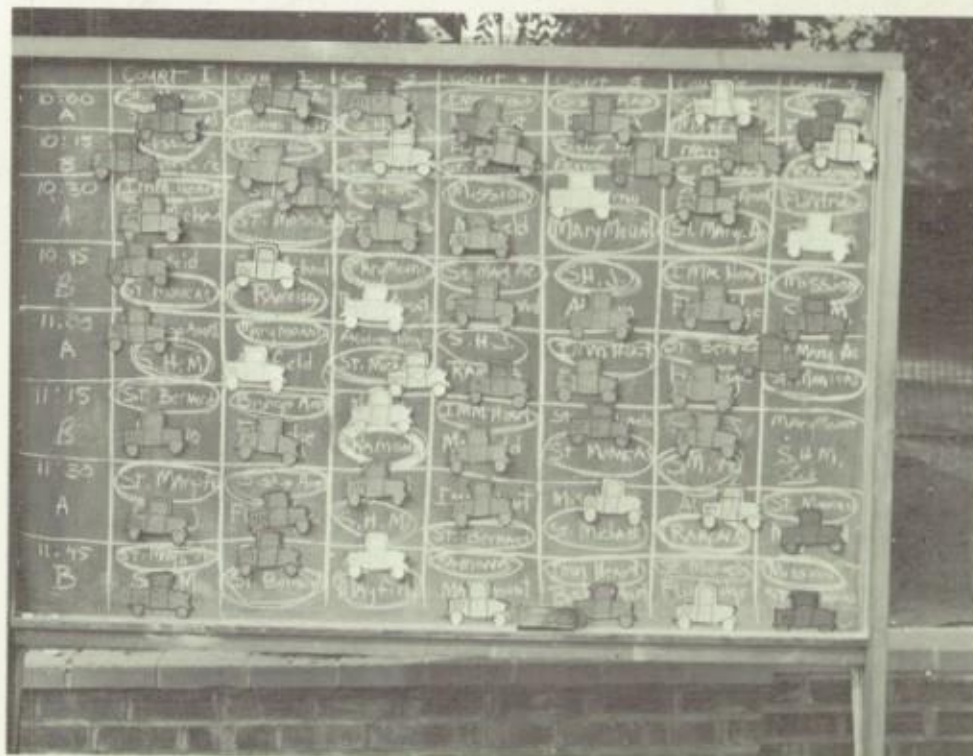

Say, how about giving us a hand?

Ramona's Playday . . .

Energy, spirit, and skill provide many exciting moments as the girls from Catholic high schools compete in R.C.'s playday.

R.C. students, led in varsity cheers, boost their home team on to victory.

Guess who won?

Mary Kay -

I hope that you don't care if I write here but there isn't any other place left. You really have been a great friend who I'll always remember. Always remember the neat, terrific, all time great, times that we've had at parties, at the beach (!!!) and every other place. I'm glad that you're not going far away
next year because then
I'll be able to see you.
You really are funny.

The sun is now setting, and this stage of our journey is coming to a close. We have been privileged to travel together down this river to the open sea of life. As if we had been one girl, we have steered toward maturity on a course that has not been without peril. As one we have enjoyed the thrills that the closeness of school life can bring, the pain of disappointments, the longings of a child who is on the brink of a new world. Through all these experiences, we have followed the course of the river and are about to sail into the shimmering, expansive sea of the future. What we leave behind, you, seniors of tomorrow, will cherish and love as we have. Although you cannot feel as we do today, at the time of your departure our joy shall be yours; our sorrow shall belong to you. Take care; do not treat your voyage lightly, yet never despair if once in awhile your ship is over-turned.

Now the sun is just barely visible over the glistening waters; if you look quickly, you may glimpse tomorrow!

Neat, etc. THE CLASS OF 1964
etc. and I'll always treasure our friendship. Be good, if you can, and never forget me. Have fun.
Love,
Diane
